

I am writing this comment in favor of keeping Airl on the radio. Every morning as I drive to school, (I am a senior high school student) I listen to Airl to help me get through my day. Their encouraging words and music inspires me to continue on as I am bombarded with college applications, SATs, and school-related work. Airl is my source of support and security. The music that is played never fails to bring a smile to my face. When a familiar song is aired, my mouth is never shut. I thoroughly enjoy Airl as it has become a part of my daily life and routine. I also listen to Airl while I do my homework. Airl is not just a radio to me anymore. It is my motivation and guidance. I helps me with my struggles as a teenager. Music from artists like Nelly, Jessica Simpson, P.Diddy are all fun to listen to, but the messages they portray in their music are completely different from the music Airl plays. Songs like Beautiful One, Hope of a Nation, Savior of the World, and other encouraging songs do not talk about sex, drugs, and violence, but it talks about the pathway to heaven and a hope to be saved from human sin. I do not mean to sound religious and evangelistic but this is my testimony. I hope you will consider it. Thank you for your time.
